

Wilber M. Ahebwa

Associate Professor with over 15 years experience in tourism, conservation and development research including tourism sector policy and regulatory frameworks' analysis and reviews. He holds a PhD in Tourism, Conservation and Development from Wageningen University, Netherlands, Msc Tourism and Environment Management from Wageningen University-WICE & New York and Bachelor of Tourism and Hospitality Management from Makerere University. He has published in international journals on tourism, conservation and development, wildlife and community-based tourism in the developing world. He has served as a senior tourism and conservation expert on the 3 A STEP Project on Tourism, Conservation and Development -involving Uganda, Netherlands, UK, Rwanda, Kenya, Tanzania, Finland, South Africa, Botswana and Namibia.