

Yazidhi Bamutaze

Associate Professor in Geography and Geo-Information Sciences. He holds a PhD (Geography), Master of Science in Geo-Information Science and Earth Observation, Master in Geography and Bachelor of Arts in Geography. He has 20 years experience in research, teaching, mentorship and scientific leadership at Makerere University. He teaches and conducts research in Geomorphology, Hazard and Disaster Science, Socio-Ecological Responses to Changing Environment and Geo-Information Science. He has carried out research and been involved in capacity development and collaborative projects. He is an Executive Member of International Geographical Union (IGU)-African Chapter, International Association of Landscape Ecology (IALE), and African Association of Remote Sensing of the Environment (AARSE); American Association of Geographers (AAG) and the Uganda Association of Geographers. He is currently the Head of GGCS Department. He has over 22 publications.