

Enock Ssekuubwa

Assistant Lecturer in Forestry and Tourism. He holds MSc. and BSc. in Forestry from Makerere University, and a Postgraduate Certificate in Land Restoration and Management from the Agricultural University of Iceland. He is pursuing a PhD in Environment and Natural Resources in Makerere University. His PhD research is focused on Ecological Attributes of Restored Tropical Moist Forests funded by NORHED through the REDD+ Project. He teaches restoration ecology, wildlife ecology and management, ecotourism and nature conservation, and vertebrate biology. His research interest is in plant ecology, ecosystem restoration, management of wildlife populations and taxonomy. He is a member of the Society for Ecological Restoration and a Certified Ecological Restoration Practitioner. He has 3 publications.