

Syofuna Agatha

Assistant Lecturer in the Department of Forestry, Biodiversity and Tourism. She holds a BSc Wood Science and Technology from Makerere University, MSc. in Forestry from Makerere University and is currently pursuing PhD in Forestry. She has 11 years university teaching experience. Her teaching and research interests include Forest Products Engineering, Wood preservation and Chemistry, Wood anatomy, Forest Harvesting systems and Technologies in relation to recovery and sustainability of the forest sector and wood industry. She has jointly published articles in international journals. She has won research grants that have supported her MSc and Phd studies.